HISTORIC BOOK TOWER

Book Tower, located at 1265 Washington Boulevard, was designed by architect Louis Kamper and built by the Book Brothers in 1926. It was the tallest building in Detroit until 1928 and has 14 floors in the main building and 38 floors in the tower. After being closed in 2009, it was purchased by Bedrock in 2015 and reopened Summer 2023 after extensive renovations.

The Conservatory Ballroom, on the 13th floor of the Book Building, has 2,700 square feet of bright and beautiful event space that can accommodate 200 seated or 275 for a strolling reception. Rich wood paneling, limestone floors, and warm plaster set the stage for an opulent event.

In the background, a dark wood-paneled wall features a bar area with glass-fronted cabinets filled with various types of glassware. Two spherical pendant lamps hang on either side of the bar. In the foreground, two plush, light-colored armchairs are positioned on a herringbone-patterned wooden floor. Sunlight streams in from the right, casting long shadows across the floor. The overall atmosphere is warm and elegant.

KAMPER'S ROOFTOP

The image shows a highly decorative ceiling with a central chandelier. The ceiling features a complex geometric pattern of gold-colored frames. Within these frames are various panels: some contain white relief sculptures of figures, while others have a dark green background with gold floral and vine motifs. The chandelier is made of brass or gold-colored metal with multiple arms and lit bulbs. The overall aesthetic is classical and opulent.
