HISTORIC BOOK TOWER

Book Tower, located at 1265 Washington Boulevard, was designed by architect Louis Kamper and built by the Book Brothers in 1926. It was the tallest building in Detroit until 1928 and has 14 floors in the main building and 38 floors in the tower. After being closed in 2009, it was purchased by Bedrock in 2015 and reopened Summer 2023 after extensive renovations.

BOOK TOWER ENTERANCE

ATRIUM

A conservatory dining room with round tables, white linens, and large windows. The room features a wooden floor with a herringbone pattern, dark green curtains, and several potted plants. The tables are set with white plates, glasses, and cutlery, and each has a centerpiece of white and yellow flowers. The room is illuminated by natural light from the windows and by modern, multi-bulb pendant lights. A projector is mounted on the ceiling. The word "Conservatory" is written in a large, white, serif font across the center of the image.

The Conservatory

The Conservatory Ballroom, on the 13th floor of the Book Building, has 2,700 square feet of bright and beautiful event space that can accommodate 200 seated or 275 for a strolling reception. Rich wood paneling, limestone floors, and warm plaster set the stage for an opulent event.

A photograph of a sophisticated interior space, likely a lounge or bar. In the foreground, two plush, light-colored armchairs with dark wood legs are positioned on a herringbone-patterned wooden floor. Behind them is a long, dark wood bar counter. Above the bar, a large wooden cabinet with glass doors displays an extensive collection of crystal glasses. The walls are clad in dark wood paneling, and the space is lit by warm, ambient light from spherical pendant lamps and table lamps. The text "Linden Room" is overlaid in the center in a white serif font.
